My Professional Role: Although I am educated and trained as a Counselor, I am working as a Grief Consultant mainly for individuals living/coping with the death of a child from any cause. My grief support via email, phone calls (US and abroad), or face-to-face (local families), however, is not a substitute for you seeking local individual or group counseling from a mental health professional in regard to your grief or other issues. I am not working as a therapist that diagnoses and treats specific mental health concerns. My counseling/consulting philosophy entails a growth model for transforming one's grief versus the medical model of diagnosing and medically treating a mental illness. However, there may be instances where a possible mental health issue may best be treated via medication/medical treatment and a combination of one-on-one counseling (ie., grief depression moves to clinical depression), but I will definitely let you know if I think further diagnostic assessment or treatment is recommended. It will then be your responsibility to seek that help from a local medical and/or mental health professional.

In 1991 I made the decision to pursue a Masters in Education with a Counseling emphasis in order to learn more on being with and facilitating the grief process of Parents and Families who have experienced the death of a child/children or other family members. Because I have chosen to offer my services free of charge since 1991, as co-Founder and Director of the FOD (Fatty Oxidation Disorders) Family Support Group, I have not pursued any further mental health licensure, even though I passed the National Counselor Exam for Certification in 1993. Additionally, because our members are spread out all over the world, there was no opportunity to meet face-to-face and accumulate the thousands of 'face time hours' within the specific time limit to meet the licensure requirements. I strongly believe my professional graduate training and my personal experience with a child's death (refer to the Coping and Healing page on our website), a surviving child's chronic rare metabolic disorder, a father's death at a young age, and the death of many other family members and friends have helped me in my own grief journey and in assisting others find their way along their own challenging road. As stated above, however, consultations with me should not replace seeking other types of professional counseling or medical help when necessary.

Consultation Fees: Thank you for choosing to share your story and concerns with me. There is no charge for my services. If you choose to make a donation to the FOD Family Support Group, it would be greatly appreciated ~ a donation is not required however. You can donate via PayPal on our website or make a check out to the 'FOD Family Support Group.' You will receive a receipt acknowledging your donation. All donations are tax-deductible. The FOD Group is a 501c3 non-profit corporation.

●●●Please note that at this time, all consultations will involve only adults 18 years and older. Issues with your younger children can be discussed, however. Please call for office location.
